Introduction

This booklet has been prepared to provide supervisors with a basic understanding of the Awards Program for Non-US civilian employees in Germany. The information is not intended to be all inclusive and does not take the place of regulations and instructions.

You, the supervisor, play a vital role in the success of the Incentive Awards Program. Money, praise, and public recognition can have a powerful impact on how well employees perform.

Employees seek recognition and distinction regardless of their grade or status in the organization. They need to feel that the work they are doing makes an important contribution to the mission of your organization.

The credibility of the awards program and its effect on employee morale and productivity depend largely on how you use it. Assure that the level of performance which earned an award has been significantly high, so co-workers recognize the justice in granting the award. An award is not an entitlement. The decision to grant or not to grant an award is a management prerogative.

Be sure to maintain confidentiality of award nominations during award processing.

Annual Performance Evaluation

Performance evaluation is a continuing process and should be done on a regular basis. However, once a year, on or around 15 May, supervisors are required to conduct an annual performance evaluation on each LN-employee who has completed at least 90 days in the current position.

The major duties are outlined in the position description. Based on that parameter, supervisors are required to establish performance standards for each position in regards to quality, quantity, and timeliness. The performance standards serve as an instrument to measure the value of your employee's daily work. Supervisors should establish clear, and preferably written performance standards and ensure employees fully understand them. Employees should be informed periodically about their performance. Let them know when they do well. Point out where the performance needs improvement.

When you do the annual performance evaluation, have a private discussion with your employee. Make sure you annotate Part B of Air Force Form 971, Supervisor's Employee Brief. Both parties should initial and date all entries made on AF Form 971. The use of special rating forms for non-US employees is not authorized.

Probationary Performance Evaluation

The probationary performance evaluation will be made prior to the end of the probationary period. Wage grade and salaried employees alike have an initial probationary period of three months. The probationary performance evaluation is done only once upon completion of the trial period after initial employment with the U S Forces. If you are unsure, check block 13A of AF Form 825, Notification of Personnel Action. If that block is blank the employee has already completed the probationary period. Since you have to forward AF Form 825 to the employee, make sure you annotate AF Form 971, Supervisor's Employee Brief, accordingly. This evaluation determines whether an employee will be retained, reassigned, or separated. Please, update AF Form 971, Supervisor's Employee Brief accordingly. If the employee's performance is not satisfactory, consult the Civilian Personnel Flight well ahead of the end of the probationary period. Your Employee Management Relations Specialist (EMR) will assist you in taking the appropriate steps.
